The main goal of the article is to illustrate how these lighting forms transform. Therefore, dark ambiances are open to interpretation; they can insinuate either insecurity or privacy and calmness. Sublimity is a constant reminder that lighting is beyond the simple act of seeing; lighting transcends sight and provokes the admiration of the person observing the city. It enabled the public to interact with the lights.

Juggling the elements that compose the cityscape, like architecture, place goal is to understand how these urban strategies work with that immediacy of perception and, thus, develop mediation forms that communicate with the unconscious side of the urban night experience.
