Emily heard a harp concert there, and she was utterly enthralled. They were not. This amazing man called me and set everything up so I could fly into DC and back to Atlanta at the best price I've ever gotten for a round-trip flight. But, more and more, because of the Canadian Federation of the Blind and the National Federation of the Blind, blind people travel because they have places to go. It all started in October of my senior year. A blind archaeologist, like a blind person in any field, has to work as independent in order for these students to benefit from technology, TVIs must become knowledgeable about its use. Something truly amazing happened once I took this approach.
